Monday Games Exploration

Waxing Poetic

(2 – 30+ players, low activity)

This is a crying game. For example, one person can ask, "What color is my shoe?" The next person needs to respond with a rhyming word. For example, the next person might say, "Any color but blue." See how many times you can go back and forth with all the people present.

Toe Fencing

(Pairs, high activity)

This game was invented in the 50's when players tried to scuff up each other's freshly powdered white socks.

Stand facing each other with palms out and grasp the other's hands. You want to be careful that you don't twist each other's hands while playing. The goal is to try and step on the other player's toe while holding their hands. Just step, not stomp! Three taps and you win the match!
